About me

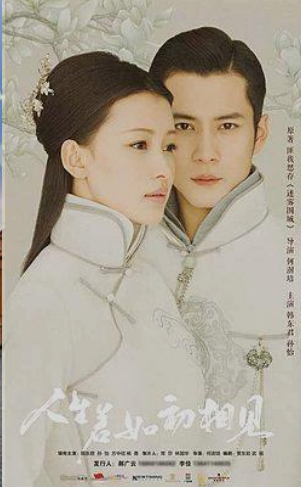

"With a lifelong passion for various forms of art, acting, and authorship, I have been actively involved in theater productions throughout my middle and high school years, gaining valuable experience. During my summer vacations, I diversified my skills through various jobs.

After completing high school, I embarked on a journey to Malaysia in search of new experiences and perspectives on life. Spending nearly two years there, I eventually gained admission to a university in Yiwu, a city close to Shanghai which is renowned for its artistic production. This opportunity allowed me to engage in numerous artistic projects, where fluency in both Chinese and English, a sense of humor, and comfort in front of the camera were essential. Motivated by this environment, I dedicated myself to mastering the Chinese language while pursuing studies in Multimedia closely aligned with my artistic passions.

Throughout my journey, I have participated in over fifty artistic projects, including sixteen starring roles, gaining recognition across various cities and regions in China. Eventually, I established my own media company under my artist's name, MIKESY, and became a shareholder in a trading company named Starway."
